PNEUMONIA FATAL TO FREDERICK W. STARKEY SUNDAY

Several Homes in Dixon and Vicinity are Visited by Reaper

Frederick George Starkey, a resident of Dixon for about eighteen years, and for the past fifteen years store clerk for the Sandusky Cement Co. at its plant in this city, died at his home, 421 E. Sixth street, at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening, death resulting from pneumonia. Funeral services will be held at the home at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the body will be taken to Chicago early Wednesday morning for burial at Elmwood cemetery.

Mr. Starkey, who had countless friends in Dixon who will mourn his death, was born in Liverpool, England, March 4, 1859, and was married Jan. 4, 1907 to Miss Mahala Mason, who survives to mourn his passing. Two daughters, Alice and Mrs. Howard J. Hall, and one son, Frederick W., all of Dixon, also survive.

The deceased was a man of exceptionally fine character and integrity and his friends number all with whom he had association.

Miss Madge Grimes Called Sunday Evening

Miss Madge Grimes, a resident of Dixon township her entire life time, died Sunday evening a few minutes before 9 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. David Heagy, four miles east of the city, death ending suffering of about two months duration with a complication of ailments.

Miss Grimes death was received as a severe shock to a wide circle of loving friends. She was born in Dixon township, June 16, 1885, and had lived in the vicinity of Dixon her entire life time. Her ministrations in the sick room and her kindly and pleasing personality, had endeared her to all who knew her. She survived by her father and two sisters. Funeral services will be conducted from the home of her sister, Mrs. David Heagy, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, interment taking place in Oakwood cemetery.

SOUTHERN SEN. RESENTS TALK OF "REPRISALS"

Echo of Smith Case Gets Under Hide of Virginian

BULLETIN

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Notes given in the Senate today by Virginia's Senators that the south was "tired of threats of universal negro suffrage" was followed by a plea by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, that the south sanction an "escape from the tyranny of the eighteenth amendment."

The Maryland Senator brought Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, to his feet to retort that "no one can constrain or restrain Virginia from enforcing the eighteenth amendment by these threats."

"If the south by legal ingenuity is able to nullify or escape the terms of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments," said Bruce, "haven't we the right to escape by such means as possible the tyrannical oppression of the Eighteenth amendment?"

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—Threats of political reprisals against the south, heard so often in senate debate on the Smith and Vare elections cases, brought a measured reply and sharp warning to eastern republican senators today from Senator Swanson of Virginia. The Democrat said he could not too strongly express his resentment at efforts made to intimidate southern representatives in Congress with threats to enforce the Fifteenth Amendments and to reduce southern representation at the Capitol because of the disfranchisements of the Negro.

Turning to debates in Congress during reconstruction days and subsequent decision of the United States Supreme Court, Senator Swanson undertook to show that the educational and other qualifications for the right to exercise suffrage in the south were not in conflict with the meaning or the intent of the Fifteenth Amendment, enacted with the view to giving the vote to the freed slaves in the south.

Found With His Body in Snow-Clogged Mountain Pass

BULLETIN

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 23—(AP)—Marine reinforcements numbering 1,000 men, today were enroute to the state of Nueva Segovia to take the field against Augustino Sandino, rebel leader, now operating in that region.

Mountain batteries, artillery, in fact everything necessary to carry on modern warfare to dislodge the Sandino followers from their mountain fastnesses, where they have been harassing Marine outposts, were taken along.

The Marines left the city of Leon yesterday on their hike which must be made on foot through mountain and jungle regions to northern Nicaragua, where Sandino is operating.

A MAGICIAN GETS BY ON THE TRICKS OF THE TRADE

Told of Heavy Fog

The first entry, written at 6:30 P.M. Jan. 14, told of encountering fog shortly after leaving here for Boise, Idaho. He climbed to an altitude of 15,200 feet to avoid the fog, but ice formed on the ship.

"Wires began taking on ice, and speed indicator stopped," Hoyt wrote.

"Tried to turn southeast but couldn't hold course. Ship sinking. Finally lost control and went into three spins at 8,000 feet. Tried to let ship adjust itself, but soon in fourth spin and decided to get out. Tried to get out wing but nosed down, throwing me over center section. Pulled ring and chute seemed to open instantly. Severe jerk and when I realized what it was all about was perhaps 500 feet above ground. Struck facing wind. Threw me head first into snow. No idea of direction. Snowing constantly. Landed just 3 p.m. Didn't hear nor see ship."

Final Entry

The next entry, at 8:30 A.M. Jan. 15, told of keeping a fire throughout the night and of awakening from a fitful slumber to find the snowfall continuing. At 3:10 P.M. on that day, he made the final entry. It said,

"Sun came out for short time. I tried to estimate south from sun and decided this was ridge. Will stay here and keep warm tonight, then tomorrow will remove flying suit and endeavor to go south."

Ranchers said that after gathering brush for a fire, Hoyt apparently sat down to rest and fell asleep, never to awaken.

Iowa—Unsettled tonight and Tuesday, snow probable; except rain or snow in southeast portion, somewhat colder Tuesday.

Illinois—Mostly cloudy Saturday.

Chicago and Vicinity—Increasing cloudiness tonight, probably followed by snow or rain Tuesday; not much change in temperature; lowest to night near 30; increasing shifting winds, becoming fresh and possibly strong Tuesday.

Wisconsin—Increasing cloudiness, probably followed by snow beginning late tonight or Tuesday; no decided change in temperature.

Iowa—Unsettled tonight and Tuesday, snow probable; except rain or

FEAST OF MUSIC FOR MEMBERS OF CIVIC MUSIC SOC.

BULLETIN

Echo of Smith Case Gets Under Hide of Virginian

Violoncellist and Pianist Starred Sunday in Fine Recital

Under the auspices of the Dixon Civic Music Association two great musical stars were presented in concert Sunday afternoon at the Dixon theater—Alfred Wallenstein, violoncellist, and Jose Echaniz, pianist.

They gave a generous program which greatly pleased the large and enthusiastic audience, the artists being recalled many times for added applause and appreciation.

Mr. Wallenstein opened the program with a group of three selections. He is noted as one of the most remarkable exponents of violoncello playing in America, and has been first violoncellist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for several seasons. He plays with an evenly sustained tone, which is the softest touch of the bow and finger, or the more vibrant and stirring notes of this wonderful instrument, which under his facile management seems to move and breathe. He plays with a depth and brilliancy of tone and expression which portray him the wonderful artist which he is. Of his first selections perhaps the most popular was the Sapphic Ode, of beautiful simplicity and wonderful melody, the theme of which returns again and again in the memory of the listener. The Intermezzo in the second group, and the last number in this group, Danse du Diabol Vert, played with much expression, were favorites, also the Menuet by Debussy, in the third group, and the charming extra which he introduced here. Mr. Wallenstein was ably accompanied at the piano by Virginia Wilson, whose sympathetic and inspiring accompaniments added much to the artistic result. In the Intermezzo by Granados, the exposition of the alluring yet impassioned cello music was beautiful, and was in direct contrast to the delicately beautiful Menuet.

Possessing a modest and gracious personality Mr. Wallenstein quite won the hearts of his Dixon audience.

THINKS LOWDEN OUT OF RACE IF FARM BILL GOES

ASHTON MAN FINED

Harold Herbert of Ashton, arrested by Officer Pomeroy Saturday evening, was fined $100 and costs by Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson in Police Court on a charge of transporting and possessing intoxicating liquor.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Robert Eisele, who has been a patient at the Dixon hospital for treatment for the last few weeks, was taken to her home Sunday morning, much improved. She will be confined to her bed for a week or so but is gradually gaining.

TAKES POSITION HERE

George C. Zafiris, formerly of this city, who has just returned to Dixon with his wife, has accepted a position at the Manhattan Cafe. A report published last week that he would assume the management of the Manhattan was erroneous.

STERLING STORES ROBBED

Dixon police Saturday evening were notified of the robbery of two outlying grocery stores in Sterling about 7 o'clock. A strange man described as being about 26 years of age, of dark complexion and driving a Chevrolet coupe, was said to have entered the Lang and Cook grocery stores in Sterling and rifled the cash registers.

In one of the places, in a scuffle with a clerk, the stranger tore two five dollar bills in bits and dropped his hat. He had left his car parked in front of the store with the motor running. The local officers watched the highways but evidently the thief took another route. Later in the evening the Sterling police reported the theft of a Pontiac coach, but this was later found.

HELD FOR FORGERIES

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Holman of Xenia, Ill., were taken in custody Saturday night about 10:30 by Chief Van Bibber at the Illinois Central passenger station, and held for City Marshal Kelly of Walnut, Holman, who has been working as a hired man on a farm north of Walnut, was charged with having passed five worthless checks on Walnut merchants Saturday afternoon, three of them being forgeries, and then going to Hanneman, where he took a train, coming to Nelson and then to Dixon, where he was waiting for a train to take him to Xenia in the southern part of the state.

City Marshal Kelly and one of the merchants, who had received one of the worthless checks came to Dixon late Saturday night and took Holman and his wife back to that city, where charges of forgery were to be lodged against him. At the police station, Holman is said to have admitted having passed the checks and using the names of parties residing near Walnut, which he forged.

Final Entry

The next entry, at 8:30 A.M. Jan. 15, told of keeping a fire throughout the night and of awakening from a fitful slumber to find the snowfall continuing. At 3:10 P.M. on that day, he made the final entry. It said,

A Mother's Plea to Her Missing Daughter

FEARS GROW that Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College miss, in a letter whose publication it is hoped will bring her home and clear the mystery of her absence. It was written while Mrs. Smith and her husband, wealthy New Yorkers, were at a hotel in the Massachusetts town co-operating in the search for their daughter.

STRATTON'S HAT IS IN RING: SEEKS EMMERSON'S JOB

Popular State Official Announced His Candidacy Today

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 23—(AP)—William J. Stratton of Ingleside, Director of the State Department of Conservation, has formally announced his candidacy for Secretary of State on the Republican ticket, confirming a possibility discussed here for more than a year.

Present indications point to three other starters in the race. State Senator Earl B. Society of Springfield, and Hal Trovillion, Herrin, member of the Illinois Commerce Commission, are already in the field. For the fourth entrant, formal announcement is awaited from Charles W. Vail, Clerk of the Supreme Court.

Stratton in his formal announcement cited the endorsement of Republican leaders in the four northern Illinois counties comprising the Seventeenth Judicial District.

If nominated and elected, Stratton said, all funds received in his office will be deposited in responsible banking institutions and interest on these funds will go to the State Treasury; no appropriations will be asked from the legislature except for economical administration expenses; he will exert his influence to reduce public expenditure. He declared that he will spend all his time on the job, and refuse any and all emoluments.

SENATE ACTION FLOUTED TODAY BY ATTY. HADLEY

Worst Blow to Gov't. Since Revolution, He Declares

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 23—(AP)—Refusal of the United States Senate to seat Senator-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois was characterized as "worse blow to our form of government than anything that has happened since 1776" when the Colonies revolted because they "refused to be taxed without representation" by former Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Hadley of Illinois in a luncheon club address today.

"Yet we have the spectacle of the U.S. Senate utterly ignoring, flouting and scorning that section of the constitution upon which the government is founded—taxation without representation," said Mr. Hadley.

In a sharp attack on Senator James A. Reed, democrat, Missouri, the speaker declared "Senator Reed speaks invariably for states' rights, yet he and his followers deny, in the Senate, the right of the 7,000,000 persons in the state of Illinois to have their proper representation in the upper house of Congress."

"These Senators are only part defenders of the constitution. They would interpret it to suit themselves. Reed and his followers support states' rights when these rights have to do with things they favor. They cannot accept and obey a law they do not favor. But that is the same position in which criminals stand."

"Should we not be prepared to resist this action of the Senate to the very death. The Senate is driving us out of the Union. We are only half in now as we have only one instead of two Senators."

OLD MASTERS

Why have the Mighty lived—why have they died?
Is it ever thus with idle wrecks to strew
Fields such as thine, remorseless Waterloo?
Hopeless the lesson! Vainly hath ever cried

Stern Fate to man—"So perish human pride!"
Still must the Many combat for the Few.

Still must the noblest blood fair earth bedew:
Tyrants, slaves, freemen, moulder side by side!

On such a day the World was lost, and won
By Pompey at Pharsalia: such a day

Saw glorious Hannibal a fugitive:
So faded 'neath the Macedonian sun

Persia's pale star: so empire passed away

From Harold's bough,—but He disdain'd to live!

Aubrey De Vere: Waterloo.

M. E. Home Missionary Society Meeting

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church held a very pleasant meeting at the home of Mrs. A. T. Stephenson at the parsonage

Thursday afternoon with forty-eight members and friends in attendance.

The meeting was opened with the hymn "Saviour Like A Shepherd Lead Us." Mrs. Edward Dawson read the scripture lesson. This was followed by a very beautiful hymn sung very impressively by Mrs. Rodesch.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Stephenson. The business of the Society was transacted, then the following program was given. The Third chapter of the study book, "The Adventures of the Church," was given in a demonstration by Mesdames Randall, Hobbs, Koller, Peterson, Winebrenner, Willford and Miss Anderson. A very pretty piano solo was rendered by Miss Mary Willford. Mrs. Henry Leydig pleased all with two very appropriate readings. Miss Calle Morgan gave an account of the work the Society is doing for the Indian. Mrs. Alice Anderson presented six names of new members to the Society. A happy social hour was spent with Mrs. Henry Bills and her group serving very dainty refreshments.

N. S. Seniors Repeat Successful Play

The members of the Senior class of the North Side high school repeated the play, "Captain Applejack," Saturday night, which they had most successfully presented Friday evening in Kindergarten hall, under the direction of B. J. Frazer, one of the instructors. A play, unusual from the general trend of such entertainment holds the attention of the audience from the opening scene to the finish. It opens with Ambrose Applejohn, a young man in his prime, leading a sedate, steady life; thinking respectability is obtained in doing a certain thing at a certain time, in a certain way, each day. He has a dream and in this dream is a throwback to his forebears, who are, it would seem, pirates of the high seas, and—hereby hangs the interesting tale. One can see from the aforementioned facts that the actors and actresses in this play have to be versatile and entirely capable of changing roles at the drop of the curtain. The young people did this very thing with much success. The North Side Senior play is pronounced one of the most successful plays ever produced in the schools and Mr. Frazer deserves great deal of credit as well as the students.

The attendance Saturday night was very good, the hall being full.

A number of the students who did not appear in the play assisted in the production in other ways, as property men, advertising and business managers, etc.

SOMETIMES WE ARE A MEAN LOT

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

My little calendar again, with its fine little verse! On each date of the New Year a gem adds itself to the bracelet of days:

"If you see a tall fellow ahead of the crowd,
A leader of men marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Would cause his proud head to be mournfully bowed,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it."

Instantly I thought of two men I used to know. When I knew them they were boys in school together and very close friends.

Their friendship continued through college. Stories filtered home to us about the escapades of David (let us call him Charles) for Charles was his right name; the other was Bob), and the relief of Charles' mother because Bob was there to keep an eye on him was evident.

Charles was the usual rah, rah boy and Bob the steady old plug. He hadn't as much money as Charles and he wasn't as brilliant, but he was always getting his friend out of scrapes, helping him cram for exams, and being good angel in general.

I've heard Charles admit he couldn't have gotten through college or passed his bar exams if it hadn't been for Bob's steady hand.

The tortoise passed the hare at last and people began to see Bob's name in print. And when they saw his name they read what he had to say. And he usually said something worth reading. He was going up fast. Too fast for friend Charles!

Now two things had happened to Bob in college. Once he got drunk, hit a student and woke up to find himself in jail. The other was about some money his roommate had lost and tried to accuse Bob of taking.

Suddenly these stories began to circulate and I with my own ears heard Charles repeat both of them.

Bob went west and made another start and now he's famous. No one ever heard of dog-in-the-manger Charles and never will.

Why is it that some men and some women cannot endure to see their friends successful? They think a leader was made to pull down. We're mean lot sometimes, aren't we?

DREAMS AND WISDOM.

He whom a dream hath possessed knoweth no more of doubting,
For mist and the blowing of winds and the mousing of words he scorns.

That little bit of verse is called to mind by reading the story of Fanny Read.

Fanny Read has lived, a voluntary recluse, in an old tavern in Hancock, N. Y., since the Civil War. When the war started she kissed her sweetheart good-bye and promised to wait for him. He never returned; but she is still waiting. Through all the years she has refused to leave the building, lest he come back and find her gone.

It is nearly 67 years now since Fanny Read's sweetheart went away. Long, long since it must have become painfully obvious that she never would see him again. Yet still she is waiting for him, a voluntary prisoner.

Most people, doubtless, will feel pity for this solitary old lady. Her life, on the surface, seems a tragedy. And yet—

One who can nourish a single delusion throughout a long life is fortunate. We are born to follow will-o'-the-wisp fires; as fast as one fades in the swamp we seek another and the revolving cycle of years brings us only new disillusionments. Our dreams die and are eternally reborn in different shapes, and each death and rebirth is paid for by the loss of a portion of our joy in life.

So it is that to be possessed, throughout life, by one unvarying dream—to be buoyed up always by one hope—is an enviable fate. And it does not matter particularly what this dream or hope may be, or where it leads the dreamer. Fanny Read has been led to futility and loneliness, to an abnegation of the commoner joys of life; yet, for all that, she has had her great illusion, has dreamed her great dream, and has kept it throughout life.

It is even beside the point to say that this may have been at the cost of mental balance. For all dreams unbalance us. Columbus, doubt it not, was half mad when he sailed to the unattainable rim of the western world. The great dream that made Daniel Boone consider himself an instrument ordained of God to make the wilderness habitable surely left him partly unbalanced. But that does not call for our pity.

For sanity and disillusion are questionable boons, at best. The truly lucky are those who can be seized by dreams, transported to high mountain tops and shown the power and the glory world, carried away by a vision beyond the reach of commonplace facts.

Poets know the truth of such things better than most. And a poet has written:

He whom a dream hath possessed treads the impalpable marches,

From the dust of the day's long road he leaps to a laughing star.

And the ruin of worlds that fall he views from eternal arches,

And rides God's battlefield in a flashing and golden car.

POSTAL RATES UNSOUND.

General revision of postal rates by the congress now in session is advocated by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It has made a survey of conditions under present rates and has found that the increase in postage on private mailing cards has driven 80 percent of that class of cards out of existence. Publications mailed by persons other than publishers have decreased 37 percent in the mails.

Continuing and increasing disuse of the mails by publishers has been called to attention of congress. All of these unsound rates cause losses to the postoffice department on these classifications. That is, they drive the business out of the mails.

Publishers almost have been forced to find other and cheaper means of transportation.

The unsound schedule of rates was the result of hasty action on the part of congress. Members had been disposed to increase compensation of postal employees, an increase to which they were entitled, but congressmen took a short cut and voted the increase without arranging the means to meet it. President Coolidge promptly vetoed the bill on that ground and put some of the responsibility for higher wages upon congress along with the credit for increasing the pay.

Finding itself instead of the president in the hole hunting for revenue to meet the bill, congress proceeded to revise postal rates. It was hardly to be expected in such circumstances that a scientific revision would be made. As high rates of taxation often defeat the end sought, the increase of revenue, so increase in certain rates of postage only destroyed the source of revenue that already existed instead of increasing the income.

It was right that the schedule should be given a fair trial, and that has been given. The short session of the last congress did not afford time for a revision, but the first session of this congress is not limited in time, and a scientific readjustment should be made.

The cracker cop seemed very kind, And off across the hilltop went the slim man, on the run. And then he shouted, with a smile, "I'll come back to you after while. Take care of all the horses now, and have a lot of fun."

The Tinies pranced around a spell and then the bunch heard Clowney yell, "Oh, look! My horse is clever! He can stand on just two feet!" And sure enough, the horse rose high with forefeet pointed toward the sky.

The Tinies laughed to see it, 'cause the sight was quite a treat.

Just then wee Copysh shouted, "Run!" And 'twas no sooner said than done. A scary thing had happened and the cracker horses tore. A tiger followed close behind, and, goodness, he looked far from kind! He'd jump out of the cracker box and then began to roar.

SAINT
and SINNER

Faith knew that as long as she lived she would blush with shame at the memory of the scene that followed her "recognition" of Cherry's baby. But there was not other way out of the intricate, degrading tangle into which her unfounded jealousy of Cherry and Bob had involved her—and them.

She sat up in bed, little Hope clasped to her breast, her eyes glowing with well-stipulated bewilderment from Cherry to Bob, to the nurse, about the hospital room that she would have to pretend was utterly strange to her, a woman miraculously and suddenly recovered from "amnesia."

"She knows us, Bob! Oh, Faith! Thank God, thank God!" Cherry shrieked, flinging her small body. "Darling," Bob said pityingly, across the bed, her arms straining to embrace both Faith and the baby.

"Where am I? What's happened, Cherry—Bob?" Faith made her voice drag with amazement.

"You've been very ill, darling," Bob said huskily, dropping to his knees beside the bed. "But thank God, you're going to be all right now. You'd better let me take the baby. She's too heavy for you, and you're very weak."

"No, no! I want her!" Faith cried wildly, her arms straining so tightly against Hope that the baby grunted in protest. "Where am I, Bob? I had an awful dream. I dreamed Cherry was going to take Hope away from me—my baby! But—it was a dream? I can't remember—oh!" She shuddered and closed her eyes. "It wasn't a dream, was it? I heard Cherry say it when I went to get the thing for Fay. I—something funny happened to me. I felt queer, sick, I—I fainted, didn't I? I was going to Fay's bathroom to get something to make me feel better and I—I don't remember anything more."

She was thankful that George was not there to witness her shame, although he had arranged for just this scene to take place.

"She knows us, Bob! Oh, Faith! Thank God, thank God!" Cherry shrieked, flinging her small body. "Darling," Bob said pityingly, bending over her so that his cheek rubbed against hers. "That all happened Sunday. This is Wednesday. You're in a hospital in Darrow."

"Darrow? How did I get here? Why Darrow's fifty miles away. Why didn't you take me home?"

"You—you were so ill that you couldn't remember anything and George found you in Vine Street and brought you here. You asked him to bring you to Darrow." Bob explained. "He told Cherry where you were, because he thought there must be something wrong, and we came to find you. You'd registered at a hotel here under the name of Stella Pringle."

"Stella Pringle?" Faith repeated in a wondering voice. "But I don't know any Stella Pringle, Bob."

"You see, dear, George had given you a suitcase of his sister's, with Selma's initials—S. P.—and because you couldn't remember your own name, you made up 'Stella Pringle' to fit the initials. You didn't recognize any of us, but George believed the sight of the baby might restore your memory, and it did, thank God. Now, you mustn't talk any more for a while, or you'll run your fever up."

"Oh, Faith, I won't take Hope away from you," Cherry sobbed. "I didn't know! Forgive me for making you sick, darling! I've been nearly crazy since Sunday. I didn't know I loved you so terribly much, but I know now, and I won't make you unhappy by taking Hope away."

It was then that Faith realized how involved and tragic the tangle was.

Six months on the highways of the world have established this car's right, beyond dispute, to the title "America's Fastest and Finest Four".

If mile-a-minute performance, lightning acceleration, custom beauty, and limousine comfort, were all it possessed, the story would not be half so impressive.

In Dodge Brothers Four these are simply the outward expression of exceptional inward fineness. No Dodge Brothers Four in thirteen years of quality building has been built so well.

Traditional Dodge Brothers standards of inspection and workmanship have been more than adhered to—they have been advanced to even higher levels.

Materials that go into the building of this car are selected with every advantage of Dodge Brothers vast purchasing resources, and fabricated with minute precision.

Every point that sustains excessive stress is fortified by the finest metals that the world's markets afford.

The performance, comfort and style you get in Dodge Brothers Four are not therefore the fleeting attributes of newness. They are deep-rooted in the car's structural quality—the surest guarantee of long and dependable service at low cost.

IRISH PRESIDENT TO BE GUEST OF COOLIDGE TUESDAY

Cosgrave Lavish in His Praise Today for Chicagoans

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—The visit to Washington of President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, afforded President Coolidge opportunity today to clasp hands with the executive of a foreign country for the second time within a week.

Home only a few days since he met President Machado of Cuba, in Havana, Mr. Coolidge arranged to greet the Irish leader at 5 o'clock to wish him a pleasant four-day stay here.

The program fixed for Mr. Cosgrave, beginning soon after the 8:40 o'clock arrival hour, included a call at the Irish Free State Legation, luncheon with William J. Donovan, the Assistant Attorney General, a visit to Secretary Kellogg at the State Department before the White House call, and later visits with Vice-President Dawes, Speaker Longworth, and Chief Justice Taft. To complete the Irish President's first day, the Canadian Minister, Vincent Massey, will be host at dinner tonight.

A varied round of entertainments and official functions has been prepared for Mr. Cosgrave, including a luncheon at the White House tomorrow after a visit to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and a dinner Wednesday night given by Secretary Kellogg at the Pan-American Union building. The British Ambassador and Lady Howard and the Irish Free State Minister, Timothy A. Smiddy, also will be hosts to the visitor.

Mr. Cosgrave will end his visit here Friday morning, leaving for Philadelphia.

EXTOLLED CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 23—(AP)—Chicago knew today the rewards of hospitality freely bestowed for William T. Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State, made it a special point before his departure yesterday to extol the city's citizenship and its mayor.

Just before leaving for Washington the sentiment of the visitors was aptly phrased by Col. Joe Reilly, body guard to President Cosgrave, who said:

"Sure, I thought I was in America when we landed in New York. Now I know we were just in the outskirts of Europe."

President Cosgrave himself had the "utmost respect" for the manner in which city officials and Irish-American leaders handled his reception.

Cosgrave Overwhelmed

"I couldn't have believed there was such a city if I hadn't seen it," he declared. "I never saw such order, such control of traffic, and I was overwhelmed at the cordiality of its people."

The Irish leader remarked that it seemed to him that "they are more Irish in Chicago than we have in Ireland." He paid tribute to Michael J. Faherty, president of the Chicago Board of Improvements, who was largely responsible for President Cosgrave's trip to America.

"I also want to say a word about that great and grossly libeled man, Mayor William Hale Thompson," he said. "If I were not experienced in politics I would have expected to meet a roughneck. I found him to be a big, kindly, genial American, so bubbling over with plans for the betterment of his city that he talked about hardly anything except the plan to connect Chicago with the sea and make her America's greatest city."

William P. Lyndon, National Secretary of the Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, sent out a notice, shortly after President Cosgrave's departure, that all Irish republicans would gather next Thursday night to hear and honor their leader, Eamonn De Valera.

De Valera will stop off here en route to Ireland where he will resume his fight against Cosgrave and for the Irish republic.

IS VETERAN FIGHTER

By Gene Cohn, NEA Service Writer, New York.—Once there were two Irishmen—but this once their names were not Pat and Mike.

It was about twelve years ago, and they were waiting in their Dublin cells for guards to enter and lead them before the firing squad. For being Irish rebels, they had taken part in the historic Easter Week uprising, from which came the greatly changed Ireland.

Both had been sentenced to die. And as they waited, they could hear the crack of rifles, dully echoed from outside the prison walls. Each shot told them some comrade was paying for his rebellion with his life. They had no idea when their turn might come. So it happened that their turn never came, for executions suddenly were halted by order of the British government.

Friends Then, Foes Now

They left the prison free men again, ready to carry on their fight. They congratulated each other on escaping. And the lived to become the bitterest of political foes.

One was the mild-looking little man in his late thirties; a grocer's son, by name William T. Cosgrave. He is the same William T. Cosgrave who arrived on our shores as President of the Irish Free State, with guns booming his welcome and silk-hatted, frock-coated, committee-men bowing him in.

High-Hat Scrappers From the Emerald Isle

The other was Eamonn de Valera, the lean, gaunt man who once headed the Irish government for his little hour and is fighting to head it again. He also is in America, having arrived several weeks ago amidst the usual quiet that marks the greeting of an "ex."

A Twist of Fate.

So today, by one of those peculiar twistings of fate's threads, two men who might have died in a common cause live in complete and uncompromising opposition. And so, also, they go about America but a few days ahead of or behind each other, to spread their arguments over soil that is neutral until it happens to support a son of Erin.

In a word, President Cosgrave heads and upholds the Free State idea, and is politely accepted by the British government. De Valera seeks complete Irish independence and particularly opposes the Irish parliamentary oath of allegiance to King George.

President Cosgrave stressed in interviews as he arrived in the U.S. that his presence here had nothing to do with De Valera's presence. He has come, he has said, feeling the necessity to express his gratitude to a nation that has done so much for his people, including the floating of a healthy loan.

But They Say—

De Valera, who expects to be a future contender, is said to be raising money here to back his cause and campaign. And the whispering chorus will tell you President Cosgrave has the further purpose of keeping De Valera from getting the money. Even if such a purpose is never mentioned—at least publicly—his very presence is taken by many to be a bit of propaganda aimed directly at the other. Confidentially, the Cosgrave supporters will tell you that De Valera hasn't a chance and, even were the present regime overthrown, the seed planted will carry on and the De Valerists must lose.

At least, in view of the background, the situation thus staged in America is dramatic.

Meanwhile Cosgrave and his entourage go speechmaking over the land. Never was there a group which so little suggested the sturdy fighter. Yet Cosgrave and the two ministers who accompany him, have shown as much fight as any burly red-head with a title of "fighting Irishman."

Mild, Pleasant

Cosgrave has the mildest of blue eyes and the pleasantest and most timid of appearances. His head cocks at an angle, like a saucy bird's, as it thrusts forward with some peculiar twist. He is as quick at retort as the various fabled Irishmen. He is quiet, simple of manner. Yet from his history, he can be firm as stone and steady as any dreamer.

His "Man Friday" on this particular trip is Desmond Fitzgerald, Irish minister of defense, who has been shot at so often that a target wins his immediate sympathies. In appearance he is a cross between an actor's version of Sidney Carton in "The Tale of Two Cities" and Chauncey Olcott twenty years ago. He might be a rakish Irish vaudeville actor or a traveling minstrel. He is the intellectual type. He likes to talk about James Joyce, or the dramatist O'Casey, or the Gaelic language.

He was a poet long before he was a "fire eater." He was writing verses when the Easter revolt tossed him into the bloody ring. He championed De Valera until the split came and then disagreed, joining the new government.

His personality duplicates that of President Cosgrave—he, too, looks like anything but the graduate of a political school well versed in the art of powder and bullets, sticks and stones. But before you draw any hasty conclusions from appearances, investigate!

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Cost of the state of Illinois of the special session of the general assembly probably will be in excess of $100,000.

Bills to cover general and incidental expenses of the session, now awaiting action, total $100,000. The amounts are divided as follows:

Traveling expenses, all members, $45,000.

Incidental expenses, members (postage, stationery, newspapers, etc.) $50. Officers of both houses, $15,000.

Incidental expenses of the house, $2,000.

Incidental expenses of the senate, $1,000.

Employees for the house, $25,000.

Employees for the senate, $12,000.

These sums are all computed on the basis of a five weeks' session. To date, the sessions have averaged three days each week. On that basis, the weekly cost would be $20,000, and the daily cost about $6,500.

Members of the assembly do not receive pay for the session. They receive, however, transportation to and from Springfield once each week. The average per member is in excess of $225.

Officers of the two houses are speaker and clerk of the house, and president and secretary of the senate.

The following are representative of the employee list: postmistress and assistant, transcribing clerks and assistants, committee clerks, committee stenographers, cloak room boys, doormen, pages, ladies room matron, and secretaries for the speaker, president of the senate, and party leaders.

The list of employees, however, has been greatly reduced from the number working during regular session. Pages have been dispensed with in the senate, and only a few are working in the house.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

suffering as is occasioned by any simple thing we do.

Leading off from the airways of the nose are small openings that connect with the sinuses. These sinuses are hollow cavities in the bones of the cranium; and they are lined by delicate mucous membrane much like that in the nose. The pressure in these cavities is kept equal with the outside air pressure through the small openings into the nose.

Anything that interferes with proper breathing through the nose favors the occurrence of sinus infection. So does influenza, where the individual fails to remain in bed long enough to insure complete recovery from the disease. These factors are important, but it is quite likely that blowing of the nose is responsible for very many more cases of sinus disease than both of them combined.

An individual has no inclination to blow his nose unless there is material that he desires to expel from the airways. This secretion only occurs as the result of irritation, which usually means infection. In order to eject the offending mucus, a person naturally feels that he must send a current of air through the nostril, pressure. Consequently he closes one side entirely, or both sides partially, and suddenly blows a powerful blast of air into the nose from behind. With the nostril closed or made much smaller, the force of the air blast greatly increases the pressure within the airways of the nose. A circumstance is created in which the air pressure greatly exceeds that in the sinuses.

Under such conditions—that is, where infection or irritation is present—there are practically always small particles of mucus hanging about the regions of the sinus openings, and these invariably carry millions of bacteria. The greater pressure in the nose causes a sudden rush of air through the small apertures into the sinuses. Naturally this current carries with it, into the cavities, some of the particles of secretion. Once arrived in the sinuses, the minute bacteria find darkness, warmth, moisture and food—all of the conditions necessary to their greatest growth and activity. Infection results. The consequent inflammation causes swelling that closes entirely the small gateways to the nose; pus forms, and as there is no place for drainage of the pus away, it develops under increasing tension which gives the excruciating pain often suffered in this condition.

So long as we do not get bacteria into the sinuses, we have no trouble with them; but when infection occurs there we pay dearly, in pain and poor health, for any carelessness by which we may have promoted the trouble. If one believes that blowing of the nose is absolutely necessary to the maintenance of bodily comfort, one should at least learn to blow it with both nostrils widely open. It is then nearly so likely that harm will result. The closing of one nostril is no less dangerous than the partial closure of both.

Flooded Creek Was Costly to Illinois

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 23—(AP)—Flood waters on Farm Creek at East Peoria last year may cause a loss of $10,000 or more to the state division of highways, as well as cause material delay in construction of a bridge across the creek.

This bridge, on Route 24, was a three span concrete girder affair across the creek, contracted for in April, 1927. The contractor started work on the bridge. Materials and expenditures before the flood represented an outlay of $10,000.

Then came the unprecedented floods which even covered the streets of East Peoria. After it had passed people of the community proposed to organize a drainage district so as to widen and straighten Farm Creek and eliminate the possibility of a bridge.

It was agreed by the highway engineers and citizens of the community, that the proposed bridge would be inadequate. Work was stopped and an entirely different type of bridge designed.

The original contractors made a bid on the new bridge, on the condition that they be recompened to the amount of $10,000; but, doubtful if this was a legal procedure, Chief Highway Engineer Frank T. Sheets asked the advice of the attorney general.

In an opinion today, the attorney general replied that he could see no way out of the difficulty other than to cancel the original contract and solicit bids on the new bridge. This would necessitate payment by the highway division for the work done on the original contract.

Besides the $10,000, he pointed out, the original contractor might bring suit in the state court of claims for damages due to delays, loss of anticipated profits and similar items.

On a Basis of Mutual Benefits

Russell Conwell, in his biography of John Wanamaker, explains that great American's business success in one paragraph.

"Because he thought of the people first, of their needs, of how he could serve them most helpfully, economically, honestly, and of profit last, they thought of him first when shopping was to be done, and the business grew."

The growth of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been a closely parallel case. This Company has put service first and profits last. The needs of the people of the Middle West have been its chief concern. It has thought constantly of how it could serve them most helpfully, honestly and economically.

They in turn have thought first of this Company when in need of petroleum products. More and more they have come to depend upon it. Thus it has grown and is growing.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has proved, as Mr. Wanamaker proved, that successful business is built on a basis of mutual benefits—benefit

CONFERENCES IN LIMELIGHT THIS SPECIAL SESSION

Assembly May be Dubbed the "Parleying Fifty-fifth"

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 23—(AP)—The special session of the fifty-fifth Illinois General Assembly might well be dubbed "the Parleying Fifty-fifth."

Conferences were held before the call was issued, before the session convened, while the assembly was meeting, over the week end recesses. Even the social event of the legislative season, the governor's reception to members and their friends, was marked by a parley between three outstanding figures in Illinois Republican politics.

From all these parleys it might be inferred that parleying is not conducive to legislation, since the accomplishments of the legislature in the first two weeks of the special session have been practically nil. Developments have come in extra session hours, outside the legislative halls.

First of the conferences of note was that between Mayor Big Bill Thompson and the governor, at Chicago. It was there agreed, according to reports said to emanate from Big Bill himself, that the new primary laws to replace those under fire in the courts, should call for April primaries.

Previous to that, at another conference, the question of September primaries arose, and the governor it was reported, expressed a friendliness toward that season.

Last Week Confabs.

The last legislative week developed the most startling confabulations. First came George E. Brennan, overlord of Chicago Democrats, who had a friendly chat with the governor and disclosed that he and the governor were at loggerheads over the date of the primaries.

Brennan declared he would marshal his minority forces in both houses to defeat any attempt to pass an April primary law, while the governor was unmoved from his original position.

No sooner had this conference ended than Homer Galpin, chairman of the Cook county Republican committee, and with him several others said to be close to Thompson, were admitted to the executive inner offices. Here it was disclosed that Cook county Republicans, due to some unnamed influence felt over the week end, were no longer in favor of April nominations. On the contrary, they declared themselves to be lined up with Brennan and the Democrats.

Minor Conferences.

There followed a series of what might be termed minor conferences. Democrats held caucuses. Republicans held meetings behind closed doors. Democratic legislators conferred with the governor. Republican leaders conferred with the governor. Round robins were passed, for and against April primaries.

Then came the climax of the conference list: That at the executive mansion. While an orchestra played dance music in the next room, Governor Small, Mayor Thompson and Senator-elect Frank L. Smith held their heads together for much more than an hour. The orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home," but their heads were still together when the music ceased.

From his conference came a reiteration of the governor's oft-expressed statement that "we will have April primaries"; and Mayor Thompson ambiguously declared that he was for the people.

The net result of these parleys have been to leave everyone, including members of the legislature, up in the air. Not one of the primary bills has been definitely acted upon in the two weeks of the session.

THIRTEEN BABY STARS OF FILM MAKE THEIR BOW

To be Introduced at Hollywood Ball
February 25

Hollywood, Cal.—(AP)—Thirteen girls, solemnly chosen by the assembled publicity men of Hollywood as the Baby Stars of 1923 will be formally introduced to the public February 25, the night of the annual Wampus ball organized by the Western Associated Motion Picture Advertisers (more informally known as the Wampus).

Many a girl has climbed to screen stardom without the accolade of baby stardom having been conferred upon her by the publicists; and some have been glorified as "baby stars" only to fade into obscurity later. But others have proved their sponsors right by soaring to real stardom within a year or two after their selection by the Wampus.

So film fans generally like to know who is chosen, and girls just beginning to get somewhere on the screen like tremendously to be numbered among the baby thirteen. Here is the list for 1923:

Lima Basquette, 20: Former child player on screen; widow of the producer Sam Warner; returned to screen last spring; now under contract to DeMille.

Wilbur's Plan Would Give U.S. a Navy Equal to Any

Naval Strength Would

Experts State

By NEA Service

Washington—Suppose Congress should adopt Secretary Wilbur's plan for $800,000,000 worth of naval construction during the next few years; how would the United States navy compare with the British navy when that construction was completed?

An answer to that question, which is heard here frequently despite assurances that this building does not imply any "race" in naval armaments with Great Britain, requires the study of many sets of figures and the consideration of several new elements in naval strategy.

Construction in Four Classes
Secretary Wilbur's program calls for construction of four classes of ships—cruisers, submarines, aircraft carriers and destroyers. In two of these classes the United States already is ahead of England; in the other two this country is in the rear.

Cruisers head the list, and it is in this class that the United States navy shows the most marked numerical inferiority to England's.

Since the World War the cruiser has come to be considered one of the most important instruments of naval warfare, and in modern reckoning of naval strength it is held nearly as important, if not entirely so, as the battleship. Cruisers lack the heavy armor of the battleship, and they lack the battleship's huge guns; but they make up for it in extreme speed—a modern cruiser is expected to be able to sustain a speed of at least 30 knots an hour—and mobility.

The California grape demands a special conference, between directors of the Association and representatives of the California shippers to-morrow.

Speakers at the convention are mainly representatives of refrigerator lines, railroads, express companies, and truck gardeners.

A discussion of the new product "Dry Ice" by J. W. Martin, of New York, is one feature of the convention.

Interspersed between speakers, a dozen or more committees will meet to discuss trade relations and the shipping of all sorts of products from bananas to potatoes.

England Strong in Cruisers

England has 40 cruisers in its fleet, and has 17 more either building or appropriated for. In the United States navy there are now but 10 first-line cruisers, with eight more building or appropriated for. The United States navy has, to be sure, 22 additional cruisers; but they are all obsolete—some of them were built before the Spanish war, and none has the speed or gun power to cope with a modern vessel—and practically all have been placed out of commission.

Thus the addition of 25 modern cruisers, as planned by Secretary Wilbur, would still leave this country somewhat behind Great Britain numerically, although in point of fact the American fleet probably would be

BULLETIN

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Jan. 23—(AP)—The itinerary of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for the continuation of his good will flight to South America and the Antilles was announced today. The itinerary, which calls for a two-day stopover in each place, is: Leave Colon, Panama, Friday for Bogota, Colombia, about 500 miles; leave Bogota Jan. 29 for Caracas, Venezuela, 650 miles; leave Caracas Jan. 31 for St. Thomas, 575 miles; leave St. Thomas Feb. 2 for Porto Rico, 75 miles; leave Porto Rico Feb. 4 for Santo Domingo, 250 miles; leave Santo Domingo Feb. 6 for Haiti, 160 miles, and leave Haiti Feb. 8 for Havana, 700 miles.

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Jan. 23—(AP)—The eagerness of Latin-American to do honor to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has brought him to a point where he is very nervous, Colonel Arthur Fisher, Commandant of France Field, believes.

The Lone Eagle "may crack under the strain," Colonel Fisher said.

The statement regarding Lindbergh's nervous condition was made after he had returned with every outward evidence of good health from a week of recreation in the tropical mountains of Panama. He went there after completing some 4000 miles of his goodwill trip and a continuous round of social functions in seven Central American capitals.

To Rest for Several Days

Although the Spirit of St. Louis was ready to carry him on to South America, it was announced that Lindbergh would take several days more of rest before setting out for Cartagena and Barranquilla, Colombia, Friday.

The good will flyer is understood to have expressed a wish that some one double for him in the social engagements his flights calls for. He is willing to do the flying and, according to Colonel Fisher, is only nervous when on the ground, and not when in the air.

It was on the vacation trip, the first extended one the Lone Eagle has had since leaving Washington on Dec. 13, that Lindbergh's nervous condition became apparent to his companion, Colonel Fisher, declared.

Lindbergh was unable to sit still, read or rest, it was stated.

Recall Nervousness

On Christmas day while Lindbergh was in Mexico City it was noted that when left alone he frequently picked up books in the library of Ambassador Morrow, as if to read them, and then put them down again shortly.

From Colombia, Lindbergh intends to fly to Caracas, Venezuela. Then he will go to St. Thomas, Santa Domingo, Haiti, Porto Rico and Cuba.

Lindbergh spent the first day after his return from the mountains on the bay in a launch and taking a horseback ride to the old Spanish fortress of San Lorenzo.

Aside from Senatorial comment that may come early in the week, the first definite step is expected to be taken on Wednesday when the Foreign Relations Committee will examine the crop of resolutions before it touching on the Nicaraguan situation.

Just how the Senate will get into the question remains in doubt because its membership is divided into several groups with conflicting views as to what should be done about Latin-American relations. Republican independents are urging a full investigation of the Nicaraguan episode with a view to returning American Marines to their home stations, while administration Senators are anxious to leave the situation as it stands now.

The latter course, however, would not satisfy Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee, or some of the democratic leaders.

Senator Borah believes the Senate should pursue an investigation that would "wring out something constructive and something helpful" toward a better understanding between the American republics.

COOLIDGE URGES PRIVATE INITIATIVE FOR INDUSTRY

We have always held very strongly to the theory that in our country, at least, more could be accomplished for human welfare through the encouragement of private initiative than through government action. We have sought to establish a system under which the people would control the government, and not the government control the people. If economic freedom vanishes, political freedom becomes nothing but a shadow. It has therefore been our wish that the people of the country should own and conduct all gainful occupations not directly connected with government service. When government once enters a business it must occupy the field alone. No one can compete with it. The result is a paralyzing monopoly.—President Calvin Coolidge, before the Union League Club of Philadelphia, November 17, 1927.

SENATORS FAIL TO SHOW FEAR FOR NEW YORK

Griffith and Harris Think Washington is in Running

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—The potential power of the New York Yankees has not shattered the morale of the Washington American League club and both President Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris are going about preparing for the 1928 campaign without shivering at the mention of the name of Miller Huggin's formidable array of stars.

Even with the absence of Walter Johnson, Harris believes that in Lisenbee, Hadley, Van Alstyne, Sad Sam Jones, Zachary, Marberry, Gaston, Burke, Braxton, and several promising pitchers from the minor leagues, he has the best mound staff in the league.

Strength has been added to the infield by the acquisition of George Sisler, who, according to Griffith, will alternate with Judge at first base. Washington fans expect that Judge will be used in a trade to strengthen the club elsewhere.

Minor League Stars

The other positions on the infield are assigned tentatively to Harris, Reeves and Bluege, but the club has several minor league youngsters for duty on the inner works.

The outfield trio of Rice, Spealer and Goslin is backed up by West and Ganzel, the latter having batted for more than .400 in quite an extended period of play last year. Tentatively Spealer has been assigned in the outfield, but few expect him to remain with the team for another season.

There have been rumors that Griffith was willing to trade Rice or Goose Goslin if he could make a good bargain, but the club officials never would confirm this.

Ruel and Tate will again be the mainstays behind the bat.

Wins El Paso Tourney by a Single Stroke

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 23—(AP)—A sensational recovery on the last hole in the second annual El Paso Open golf tournament brought victory by a single stroke to Larry Nabboltz, unattached professional from Cleveland.

Nabboltz, whose long drives have aided to keep him in the money in keen competition for four years, finished the 72 holes over the El Paso Country Club in 23 strokes. Starting Saturday with consistent golf, he turned in a pair of 73's for the first 36 holes and came back yesterday with a 72 and a 73, to beat out MacDonald Smith of New York, who needed 294.

Sending the ball well down the fairway on the 18th hole on the final round, Nabboltz apparently had eluded the bad luck attending the first part of the final round, but it rolled behind a tree and ten into a trap near the green. He elected an explosion shot. The ball rimmed the cup and rolled on twelve feet. A perfect putt gave him a three and first prize of $1,000.

Mandell May Defend Title in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 23—(AP)—Prospects for a lightweight championship match here before spring are seen in the announcement by Eddie Kane, manager of Champion Sammy Mandell, that he was ready to contract for a match as soon as promoter Jim Mullen produced a suitable contender.

Following a warning of the National Boxing Association that Mandell must sign to defend his crown soon or be suspended, Kane said he, failing to receive offers from promoters, sought one himself.

Mullen is working on a list of possible contenders, Kane said, but no date has been decided upon. Kane and Mullen have discussed February 26 as a possible day for the match.

Mandell is in training, Kane said, and will be ready for a match on short notice.

Thinks He Has Qualified for Match With Tunney

New York, Jan. 23—(AP)—Quibbling in the heavyweight ranks has ended out again with Jack Sharkey balking at an elimination struggle against Johnny Risko.

According to matchmakers Jess McMahon, one of the Madison Square Garden lieutenants, Sharkey feels he is sufficiently qualified to box Gene Tunney in a championship bout without the necessity of future tests.

However, McMahon said Sharkey's showing in his recent draw battle with Tom Heeney was not impressive. McMahon plans to confer with Sharkey in Boston tonight with the intention of clinching the Boston sailor man to the Risko bout now tentative set for March 12.

The principals in the other half of the heavyweight elimination bracket also tangled in a dispute. Jack Delaney's activities calling for a fight a week have drawn protests from Heeney's handlers who intend to ask the New York athletic commission tomorrow to prevent the Bridgeporter from participating in any more bouts until after his match with Heeney.

Heeney's advisers assert Delaney might sustain injuries to his hands which would interrupt the present elimination program.

BOBBED HAIR TO SAVE WORLD IN PROF. OPINION

Startling Edict of Serious Man of University

BY ALLENE SUMNER
NEA Service Writer

Madison, Wis.—Bobbed hair will and must save the world.

This is the startling edict of a serious man of letters and science, Edward Alsworth Ross, professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin, who takes the bobbed hair controversy out of the beauty parlor realm and makes it symbolize the welfare, the future of the whole world.

The professor reasons it out like this.

Bobbed hair is still the Oriental symbol of woman's emancipation. It takes as much courage to have bobbed hair in China and Japan and India as to leave the purdah or harem and dare get a job.

An Inferior Position

"Sixty per cent of all humanity lives under Oriental philosophy," says Dr. Ross. "This philosophy teaches the utter superiority of the male—that women are only tools for man's convenience and pleasure, and that it is every woman's religious obligation to bear at least one child a year."

"So fixed is this belief among Orientals that even college women educated abroad return to their own land to bear as many children as their sisters in the coolie class."

"The result is a menace to the whole world, which faces a very near future with 'standing room only' and not even that, for every human born into the world."

"The Orient absorbs our toxins and serums and vaccines. The death rate has fallen tremendously. The practice of throwing unwanted babies to the crocodiles or exposing them to perish has been stopped by our 'civilized' influence."

"But while nobody is dying, relatively speaking, the same hundreds of thousands are being born and there is no room for them."

"And as the Orient becomes more and more populated, the Occident with its religious code of consideration to women and no more babies than they want, with its 15 percent practicing birth control, is falling far behind."

"We have influenced the death rate, but not the birth rate."

Dr. Ross presents these birth rate figures to prove his point. Birth figures in England and France, it is 18; Italy's is 29 and the Orient's is 50 to 60 per thousand.

"The only hope for the world is for our theory of the emancipation of woman—short hair, short skirts, jobs, no more babies than she can care for—to sweep the Orient," says Dr. Ross.

"Until it does we simply cannot permit the Oriental overflow to flood us. They must stew in their own juice."

"We should keep on sending them our science, both to save life and to prevent life, but until they have learned how to balance the death rate and birth rate in a way more civilized than by the practice of infanticide, they must bear the burden of their own folly alone."

Our Rate High, Too

Nor is it only the Oriental birth rate that worries Dr. Ross. Our own is high, since he, it is only necessary for each family to produce 3.1 children for the population to remain constant. But not only are those 3.1 children not being produced by "the better classes," but a much higher rate is being produced by "the unfit."

"Incapables and weaklings are being so sheltered and cared for," he says, "that they are able to rear their progeny. Besides saving worthy persons from the consequences of their misfortunes, philanthropy is saving the unworthy from the results of their incompetency and misconduct. In all previous stages of society fools and weaklings disappeared early; but now, they are not only kept alive, but are assisted to maintain homes in which they can raise children. The poor enjoy as much protection against disease as the well-to-do."

"The cutting in two of the death rates makes it needless to maintain the old birth rate."

"But family limitation is practiced mainly by the successful, the farsighted, and those with a high standard of living for their children."

"The dull, the shiftless, the improvident, the brutal, continue to breed at the old rate."

Woman headlines much of Dr. Ross' sociological research. He discusses the wage-earning wife.

Her Job Ends Early

"The normal woman is emancipated from her job of family rearing by the time she is 42," he says. "She then has a 25-year prospect of life. This prospect looks pretty hard if she doesn't know what to do with it after her family's grown."

"It is significant to note, though, that during good times women are more likely to work than ever before."

"BIG NAVY" PLANS TARGET OF BORAH ORATORY SUNDAY

Says Supporters are "Mischievous to Last Degree"

Washington, Jan. 23—(AP)—The proposals before Congress for a greater navy and recent predictions of another war over commerce constitutes "sheer madness," in the opinion of Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and duplicate the "insane policy" that marked Anglo-German relations prior to the world war.

Attacking as "mischievous to the last degree" the recent recommendation of Admiral Charles P. Hughes, Chief of Naval Operations, for virtually a billion dollar navy and the statement Saturday attributed to Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, that a war with Great Britain is inevitable, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee in a statement last night, said:

"All this is a part of a well-organized plan to prepare the public mind for a naval race. A limited number of cruisers to help police our commerce can be justified. But this program together with the wild and excited statements about war is sheer madness."

Talks of Taxes

"Those who must pay the taxes and do the fighting and dying in case these people succeed in bringing on war," he said, "ought not to delay in taking part in this program. They are entitled to be heard before this made policy becomes fixed."

"Admiral Plunkett," he continued, "repeats the old worn out fabric that the way to have peace is to prepare for war. When the great World War broke out, the nations responsible for that war were armed to the teeth. They had bled their people white in the name of the hoary lie that arms mean peace."

"If one single nation could arm to the limit and all other nations would refuse to arm, it might mean peace for that particularly armed nation. But the minute one nation begins to arm, all other nations begin to do so and then few threats are put out and war is easy and indeed inevitable."

DENIES WAR TALK

New York, Jan. 23—(AP)—The New York Times today quotes Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, as denying that he predicted war with Great Britain.

"I don't remember what I did say," the Times quotes the Admiral as saying. "You go get the record; you will see what I said and you will get something worth while. My remarks were taken down stenographically."

"I am not in the habit of predicting war. Preparedness, in my mind and in the mind of all other navy and army men, leads to peace and not to war."

The stenographic record of the Admiral's address was not available.

BARS TELEPHONE FROM HIS HOME SO HE CAN WORK

Electrical Wizard Insists Against Modern Utility

By NEA Service

Miami Beach, Fla.—Fred Osius, 47, of Racine, Wis., has perfected at least 15 major electric devices that have vastly affected American life, but he scorns the most popular of electrical conveniences—the telephone.

Practically a hermit in a half-million dollar winter home here, the man who filed early patents on the vacuum cleaner, the electric vibrator, the universal electric motor, the portable electric sewing machine, and the electric milk-shaker denies himself a facility that now is to be found in the most modest residence.

Arch Enemies!

"The telephone brings me too close to the world," Osius explained. "The telephone and I are enemies. In the experimental factory at Racine, its ringing jangled every thought and seriously interfered with my work. When I came to Miami Beach, because of ill health, nine years ago, and built a winter home, I determined not to put up with it any longer."

Osius left school at the age of 12. At 18 he was the proprietor of a small store in Racine, started on a capital of $165. As he brushed counters the idea of the vacuum cleaner was born:

First Portable Cleaner

The young inventor journeyed to New York and financed the first portable machine of its kind to be placed on the market. Others were working along similar lines but Osius was on the job early enough to obtain $300,000 on his patent.

The perfection of the universal motor by a concern owned by Osius made possible the development of many other electric-drive labor savers for the home.

In 1908 Osius brought out a portable electric sewing machine. The electric milk-shaker, now a necessity at every soda fountain, was produced by him in 1910.

Times Have Changed

"America today presents a greater field for inventions than at any time in its history," Osius said. "When I was first attempting to market my ideas, the public was not used to new-fangled things and it was difficult to sell them. That is all changed now."

"The public has witnessed so many marvels in the past few years that it is ready to accept and purchase any labor-saving device that can logically explain."

Osius now is working on new methods of preparing coffee. He has just completed a model of cigarette and cigar vending machine.

The interview was ended by the butler announcing the arrival of a friend, but the inventor did not hear the door bell ring. It is audible only in the sound-proof butler's pantry.
